Meeting records Transcript

Summary

HubSpot workflow review and database navigation with access updates and automation planning.

HubSpot Workflow and Navigation
Discussion covered initial automation workflows and company database navigation. Timelines were adjusted for meeting preparations.

Access Limitations and Integration
Account restrictions were identified requiring permission updates. Meeting preparation fields were proposed for HubSpot integration.

Automation Triggers and Reports
Automated workflow triggers and report delivery formats were established. Exploration of platform capabilities concluded the session.

Decisions

Aligned

- Meeting preparation workflow timing adjustment The meeting preparation workflow timing is adjusted to at least 3 days prior.

- Automated workflow trigger and notification schedule The automated meeting workflow is configured to create a task 7 days before the meeting for details completion, generating the report 3 or 5 days before the meeting.

Next steps

- ☐ [Levi Young] Update Access: Contact D regarding the modification of Al-khair Pama's HubSpot access levels. Ensure he receives the necessary permissions to edit meeting details.
- ☐ [Al-khair Pama] Explore HubSpot: Navigate through the platform to understand its current structure and company data organization. Identify available functionalities for managing leads and opportunities.
- ☐ [Al-khair Pama] Research HubSpot AI: Assess the capabilities of the native AI features within the CRM. Determine if it can facilitate meeting preparation reporting and data extraction workflows.
- ☐ [Al-khair Pama] Explore Init: Examine the Init automation platform for its potential in managing project workflows. Document features that enable long-term automated processes.
- ☐ [Levi Young] Configure Meeting Card: Attempt to add custom fields to the internal meeting cards in the CRM. Include data points such as meeting purpose, target outcomes, and agreed next steps.

Details

HubSpot Workflow and Meeting Timing: Al-khair Pama shared an initial automation workflow for HubSpot. Levi Young requested a modification to ensure meeting preparations are addressed earlier, suggesting that timelines be adjusted to at least three days prior to the meeting rather than just the day before. Al-khair Pama agreed to update the planning workflow accordingly (00:01:07).

HubSpot Navigation and Company Databases: During a screen-sharing session, Levi Young guided Al-khair Pama through the HubSpot platform to locate specific company databases, including target companies for Melbourne, Adelaide, and Perth (00:02:28). Levi Young instructed Al-khair Pama to change the view setting from twenty-five to one hundred items per page for better visibility. They also reviewed specific company pages, such as NAB and associated contacts like Gabrielle, to examine activity tracking (00:05:43).

HubSpot Access Level Limitations: While examining company pages for organizations like BMW and NAB, Al-khair Pama noticed that meetings were not displaying properly and identified that their current account status is restricted to view-only access, preventing them from modifying any data (00:08:14). Levi Young concurred that the access level needs to be edited so that Al-khair Pama can perform necessary modifications (00:09:37) (00:12:00). Levi Young requested that D update Al-khair Pama's HubSpot access (00:22:20).

Meeting Prep Custom Fields Integration: Levi Young proposed adding specific meeting preparation questions—such as the purpose of the meeting, target outcomes, and previously agreed next steps—directly into the HubSpot meeting card so that Al-khair Pama's artificial intelligence platform can extract them (00:12:00). Al-khair Pama questioned why these questions could not remain in AppSheet, but Levi Young clarified that integrating them into the HubSpot meeting tab is preferred (00:13:52). Levi Young agreed to investigate the back-end feasibility of adding these fields at their end (00:15:08).

Automated Meeting Prep Workflow Trigger and Timeline: Al-khair Pama explained that logging a meeting in HubSpot will serve as the trigger for the automated workflow, which pulls company data, conducts research, and compiles a report for internal teams. Noting that meetings are often booked one to two months in advance, Levi Young requested a delay mechanism in the workflow to prevent information from being shared too early (00:18:51). Levi Young proposed that a task be automatically created seven days before the meeting, giving staff until five days prior to fill out details, which allows the report to be generated three to five days before the actual meeting (00:19:56).

Report Output Format and Account Requirements: Levi Young specified that the generated meeting prep report should be delivered via email or as a PDF file so team members can easily read it without needing to log into an online platform (00:21:10). Additionally, Al-khair Pama outlined their platform access requirements, noting they need a plan account for development to save costs and a pay-as-you-go account for workflow integration (00:22:20). Levi Young committed to having D update Al-khair Pama's HubSpot access to ensure greater usability (00:23:26).

HubSpot AI Exploration and Automation Tools: Al-khair Pama stated an intention to explore HubSpot artificial intelligence capabilities to determine if native features can reduce platform costs, though they noted HubSpot operates primarily as a CRM rather than an AI provider (00:23:26). Furthermore, Al-khair Pama discussed utilizing an internet-based automation tool to execute permanent workflows for the project (00:24:29). Levi Young and Al-khair Pama concluded the meeting with plans to communicate further as development progresses (00:25:42).
